P. A. STOKES,

UNCOMMON CLOTHES

FLOTSAM AND JETSON.

The steamer Alliance came in from Eureka and Coos Bay points yesterday morning and docked at the Callender pier. She had about 90 people in her cabins and was loaded deep with general lines of freight. Captain Kelly concluded to send his passengers forward to Portland by the A. & C. train last evening, and after putting on some extra sheathing for ice contingencies en route, will leave up this morning for the metropolis.

Jimmy Robb started yesterday morning for the city, from the Buoy Station in his launch, and about half way down got caught in the ice-floe and his propeller jammed and rendered him helpless. He immediately hoisted his flag with the ensign down as a signal of distress, which was answered at once by the Callender tug Melville, which towed him in to the dock.

The British steamship Saveric now in this port, is one of the biggest vessels that has entered here for some time, being of 11,000 tons net. She is from Honolulu via San Francisco and went to the Islands from Portugal with 1,400 natives of that country as immigrants. She carries immigrants and cattle, as a rule, and is comfortably and handsomely fixed up.

It was rumored yesterday that the master of the steamer Northland had been offered the sum of $3,000 cash for his services in picking up and bringing into port the wrecked bark M. A. anope, last month, but that he promptly turned it down, and the issue is still to be made as to final settlement in the libel suit for $65,000, now pending in the federal court at Portland.

The British ship Halewood, Captain Brew, has been ordered to Tacoma, to load coals for Mexico. He will be towed over to the Sound, but just what tug will take him over, one of the Columbia boats, or one from the Sound, is more than he could say yesterday. He will probably leave out on Thursday.

The British steamship Condor, which entered this port on Monday evening, comes after coal, and will load out sixty tons from the Elmore bunkers today, and leave immediately for Seattle, where she will discharge her cargo of nitrates from the South American coast.

The ice conditions in this harbor were just a bit worse yesterday morning than on Monday, as it was of heavier calibre, and there was more of it; but it did not stay the vessels that had to go through it, hereabout, and the afternoon ebb dispersed it pretty generally.

The steamer Undine, Captain Larkin went up the river at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, with twenty-seven passengers, and a heavy consignment of mail, and her progress was telephoned back all day long. She made it in all right, but somewhat off her schedule hours.

Captain A. E. Beard, late of the Callender service in this port, and master of the steamer Vanguard, was yesterday assigned by the customs authorities here, to the command of the customs launch Patrol, vice Captain William Smith, retired.

The steamer T. J. Potter is still berthed at the O. R. & N. pier here and it is not known for a certainty that she will get away for the metropolis today, but she will if there is any chance of her making it through without any danger. She is not sheathed against the ice.

The steamship Aztec is lying fully loaded at Portland, ready for her voyage to San Francisco, except that she must take on coal and there is no coal to be had on the instant, but she will probably get away today or tomorrow.

The steamship Columbia is due to leave out for San Francisco from Portland tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. This will bring her to the O. R. & N. docks here some time tomorrow night and she will leave out on Thursday morning early for the south.

It was a matter of doubt yesterday morning whether the steamer Nahoota would make the trip to Ilwaco, or lay up for a closer river, but she left for the northshore about noon and made it all right.

The steamer San Mateo arrived yesterday afternoon with Captain Pope of the river pilot service on the bridge. He reports the Columbia as full of ice, and navigation as arduous as it is interesting.

The British tramp steamship Saveric arrived in yesterday and is at anchor in the city channel. She is under charter to load grain out of Portland for Oriental delivery.

The four-masted schooner Churchill of the Simpson fleet, arrived in from San Francisco yesterday and went to her berth at the Knappton mills for another big load of lumber.

The British ship Iverna left out over the bar yesterday afternoon on the flood, on her way to South Africa, Captain Gus Anderson of the bar pilot service taking her out.

The schooner F. S. Redfield cleared yesterday at the custom house for San Francisco with 515,000 feet of lumber, and left out at once.

The steamer Sue H. Elmore will leave out for Tillamook this morning, with plenty of business above and below.

The Roanoke is due to arrive in today from the south, being now two days over her regular Monday schedule.

The steamer F. A. Kilburn is due in this morning, having left Coos Bay yesterday at 1:30 o'clock p. m.
